Lt. Col. Fogt's path to bobsledding was unconventional. A former high school track and field star, he transitioned into the sport, drawn to its speed and camaraderie. He began competing at the Olympic level, showcasing the boundless capabilities and diverse talents that Soldiers in the U.S. Army possess. His illustrious athletic career boasts three Winter Olympics appearances (2010, 2014, 2018) with a Silver medal performance in the 4-man event at the 2014 Olympic Games. He's also held the American record for the fastest push time in the Calgary Ice House and was a six-time National Team member. Notably, he achieved a remarkable feat by winning seven consecutive World Cup races during the 2013-2014 season.

"It's an honor to represent our great country by wearing the flag on both my military and bobsled uniform. In both capacities, I am able share American and Army values with competitors, friends, and partners across the globe."
